The Urbana Public Arts Program and Commission

The Urbana Public Arts Program and Commission were established by the Urbana City Council in 2008 to foster a city in which all residents—emerging artists, established artists, and “non-artists” alike—may engage with the arts and in which artists thrive and are valued. The Commission serves as the advisory board for the following programs:

- Urbana Arts Grants are given annually to individual artists, groups of artists, and art festivals.
- Art at the Market is a series of free art workshops and performances held at Urbana’s Market at the Square.
- Art Now! is a television program featuring interviews with local artists that showcase their artwork.
- Artist of the Corridor presents art exhibitions in the Urbana City Building lobby.
- The Urbana Sculpture Project brings public art to Urbana.
- Murals on Glass features the work of local artists on windows in Downtown Urbana.
- Municipal Building Projects are allotted at least 1% of the original budgeted construction cost for public art.
